

Editor's Notes

The term sustainability has been discussed for almost a decade now, with the Fashion Industry being particularly concerned as it is said to be one of the most polluting industries in the world with the industry also the second largest water consumer.

The impact of the trend "fast fashion" has brought increased awareness in the development of green fashion and the day before one of the most influential events of the global fashion industry, the annual two-day Prime Source Forum (26-27 March 2013), Prime Source Forum - an Executive View on Sustaining the Environment will be held (25 March 2013), covering the sustainability issues of the fashion industry.
