Nowadays, companies have to innovate, not only to thrive, but to survive. The impact of innovation is evident in different aspects of production, including marketing, supply chain management, gem and metal technologies, product development and business strategies.”

The 2017 independent judging panel consists of industry experts namely Albert Cheng, Advisor to the World Gold Council, Far East (WGC); James Courage, former Chief Executive of Platinum Guild International and former Chairman of the Responsible Jewellery Council; Lin Qiang, President and Managing Director of the Shanghai Diamond Exchange (SDE); Nirupa Bhatt, Managing Director of the Gemological Institute of America (GIA) in India and the Middle East; Yasukazu Suwa, Chairman of Suwa & Son, Inc of Japan; and Mark Lee, Research Director of Asia Pacific Institute for Strategy (APIFS).

WGC’s Cheng said, “I am happy to see increased participation this year, especially from Southeast Asia and China. Although this creates more debate for the judging panel, it helps further strengthen the Awards.”

“The quality and geographical breadth of this year’s entrants confirm the relevance of such awards, reflecting the focus of the region’s push on innovative and evolving technical and environmental developments, while increasing the importance on consumer responsibility and creative marketing,” Courage commented.

“The shortlisted entries not only demonstrate solid achievements and effective approaches in problem-solving, they also set examples of good leadership,” noted Lin of SDE.

GIA’s Bhatt shared, “It is encouraging to see the high quality of entries, which makes our responsibility as judges more challenging and exciting. Recognition like this inspires entrants to further grow their talent and accelerate the pace of innovation.”
